Long

Samantha was a keen recorder player, starting lessons at the age of five, progressing to the clarinet just two years later at primary school with Lynda Blackburn. Samantha would later take part in regular music assemblies and concerts during her time at Highfields Primary School (Manningtree, Essex), inspired by her head teacher, Hilary Cook.

Whilst attending Manningtree High School (Manningtree, Essex), Samantha completed her secondary music studies with Beverly Firth, becoming a valued member of two clarinet choirs who would regularly compete in Colchester's Rotary Club Festival of Music and Dance, also frequently performing in the school bands and various ensembles at the school's bi-annual concerts. By the age of thirteen, Samantha had achieved her Grade 8, with merit, joining Essex Young People's Orchestra. At sixteen, she was selected as the principal clarinettist of Essex Youth Symphonic Wind Orchestra, directed by, British clarinettist Charles Hine. Samantha would later continue her studies at Colchester Sixth Form College.

In 2009, Samantha graduated her music studies with honours at Colchester Institute: Centre for Performing Arts, working closely with Charles Hine, and composer Jeffery Wilson. Later, after graduating, Samantha continued her clarinet studies under the guidance of Wilson, performing regular lunchtime recitals at the Cramphorn Theatre (Chelmsford, Essex) with pianist and musical director, Dr Ian Ray. More recently, Samantha has performed as soloist with Clacton Concert Orchestra and premiered works by composer, Peter Thorne.

A passionate musician, Samantha obtained performance diplomas from Trinity college London, (ATCL) and Associate Board of the Royal Schools of Music (DipABRSM). In high demand, Samantha has established herself as a clarinet tutor, theory mentor and clarinettist in Colchester, founding Da Capo Academy, Ltd with her husband Dylan Christopher. Samantha continues to provide opportunities for learners over a wide range of ages and abilities, working together with them to explore music and share her passion.
